

As a tech-savvy student, Sam wants to find affordable, reliable second-hand tech gear from other students so that he can upgrade his setup without breaking the bank.

Situation: Sam's laptop starts slowing down right before finals, and he needs an upgrade quickly but can't afford a brand-new one.

Action: He logs into Niner Barter, filters for "used laptops," and finds a listing from another student who recently upgraded. After reviewing the listing and messaging the seller, they agree to meet safely on campus for an exchange.

Outcome: Sam gets a working, affordable laptop from a trusted student seller, saving money and avoiding the risk of scams from other platforms.

Situation 2: Situation: Sam has an old gaming headset and a spare keyboard collecting dust in his dorm. Instead of letting them go to waste, he decides to sell them.

Action: He lists the items on Niner Barter with clear descriptions and fair pricing. Within a few days, another student reaches out, and they arrange a meetup on campus.

Outcome: Sam earns extra cash while helping another student get affordable gaming gear, all within a safe, student-only marketplace.

As an eco-conscious student, Jordan wants to find sustainable and second-hand items from other students so they can reduce waste and make environmentally responsible purchases.

Situation: At the start of a new semester, Jordan wants to buy notebooks, binders, and other school supplies without contributing to waste by purchasing brand-new items.

Action: They browse Niner Barter's listings and find a senior selling gently used binders, folders, and a whiteboard. Jordan messages the seller and arranges a meetup on campus.

Outcome: Jordan gets affordable, pre-owned school supplies while preventing waste, and the seller clears out unneeded items in an eco-friendly way.

Situation: Jordan has outgrown some of their clothes but doesn't want them ending up in a landfill. They also want to encourage sustainable fashion on campus.

Action: They list their gently worn, high-quality clothing on Niner Barter, tagging it as "sustainable fashion." Another student looking for eco-friendly clothing reaches out, and they set up an exchange.

Outcome: Jordan gives their clothes a second life, earns some extra cash, and promotes sustainability within their student community.
